

Employee health and benefits for financial institutions

A proven, effective approach to employee health and benefits.

Financial institutions from credit unions to banks have a unique set of challenges and goals. For over 25 years, MMA has helped financial institutions minimize the risk and maximize the health of their organizations and employees through a robust employee health and benefits platform.

What we do

We combine the latest benefits technology and service offerings into one platform. From customized communication and education programs to increase employee engagement to the latest in technology and implementation strategies, our service platform is a cohesive solution for minimizing organizational risk and maximizing the health of employees within financial institutions.

MMA built the following services specifically to support financial institutions:

Employee communication and education

Monthly and quarterly pre-built educational campaigns, reliving you from the task of researching and authoring employee communications and educational materials.

Employee health improvement

We have constructed a package of turnkey health education campaigns, wellness newsletters and communications, wellness posters, biometric screening and flu shot vendor referrals and implementation assistance and Needs and Interests Surveys, all geared towards health improvement in your employee base.
