

Safety Consulting Overview

Marsh & McLennan Agency (MMA) Safety Consultants apply their expertise to understand your needs and use proven strategies for your most complex risks. While addressing OSHA compliance, we also focus our attention on the direct loss drivers that impact your business, such as machine guarding, slip/trip/fall prevention or proper material handling. We work with you and your employees to develop a plan, communicate the information through training and followup with evaluation - all in an effort to minimize risk and maximize health for your organization.

Complete Risk Management

MMA's risk management division is made up of multiple segments that all work together to improve client performance and produce measurable results. To accomplish this, the group focuses on early risk identification, business process improvements, pre & post-claims management and reduced claim and premium exposure.

History

Since 1961, we've carried the philosophy that safer workplaces = less claims. This also translates to greater productivity, improved profitability, less losses and fewer occupational injuries and missed work days. Our team of safety professionals has expertise within multiple industries and various company sizes to help your organization minimize risk and maximize health.

The MMA Difference

Safety Expertise

MMA Safety Consulting, a division of MMA, offers safety expertise in a variety of industries. Our consultants are safety professionals who have earned degrees in safety management and have experience in a variety of industry segments and operations. Additionally, we require our consultants to participate in ongoing continuing education to ensure that we are providing our clients with the most current safety techniques.

Risk Management

Because MMA Safety Consulting is a division of MMA, we have a much greater understanding of the overall risk challenges that organizations face. This relationship allows us to have access to additional risk management professionals with technical expertise in claims management, insurance issues and bonding among other disciplines.

Team Concept

MMA Safety Consulting operates as a team of several safety professionals. We leverage our technical knowledge and practical experience to more effectively solve our clients' safety challenges. We often rely on internal professional peer review to provide our clients with answers to their safety and risk management issues.

Our team of safety professionals forms a partnership with clients and their workforce in order to minimize risk and maximize health.
